Setup

- Administrators decide what information is available to students. The initial setup process establishes each student's unique user name and password, using either the student number or the student's e-mail address. Security and confidentiality are ensured because access is decided based on specific, pre-determined criteria such as active vs. inactive student status, and grade level.

Teachers and Administrators

Maintaining the Student Portal is easy because staff determines what information will be available to each student—either on a per-student basis, or as a mass selection or update. Detailed help is available on each administration screen, opening in a separate window so users don't need to navigate back to their entry screen during setup. What's more, staff has the ability to run reports on all setup screen data.

From that point forward, information “published” by teachers and administrators is instantly viewable and available to students as soon as it's uploaded. And to ensure information is delivered in a timely manner, district-posted announcements, messages and alerts can be designed as date-driven, based on a calendar-date selection for “start” and “finish” dates.
